

UPDATE -- 7.2 Competencies

Plus Sàrl determines the competencies necessary for the implementation of its activities and the maintenance of conformity of the products and services provided.

Given the single-person structure, the manager possesses and implements the organizational, interpersonal, technical, and decision-making competencies essential to the proper functioning of the company, notably:

- A high level of availability ensuring service continuity and responsiveness towards clients and partners
- The ability to define priorities in the overall management of the company and to focus on essential day-to-day actions
- The aptitude to assess the limits of the company's competencies and to refuse or halt a product when a conforming solution cannot be guaranteed
- Interpersonal competencies and a human sense enabling the management of client complaints, the maintenance of a relationship of trust, and the preservation of the quality of relationships with suppliers
- The ability to implement quick solutions to resolve problems, including through commercial adjustments when necessary for client satisfaction
- The ability to communicate in English with international partners
- The availability to travel if necessary to industrial partners in China, to clients, or to customs authorities in order to resolve a critical situation

The manager ensures the maintenance and development of these competencies through experience, daily practice of the activity, continuous communication with partners, and the consideration of client feedback, in accordance with the requirements of the standard.
